REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:
2. The patent to Moody 101' discloses a poker card game wherein each player is dealt five cards, and six community cards are dealt in the center of the table. The community cards are arranged defining a pyramid having a top row of one card, a middle row of two cards and a bottom row or three cards. The patents to Moody 448' and Merlino et al. disclose poker card games wherein each player is dealt a hand of cards, and community cards are dealt to the center of the table. The community cards are arranged defining a cross shape. The patent to O'Halloran discloses a gaming machine having a first base game in the form of a spinning reel game, and a bonus game wherein playing cards are arranged defining a pyramid shape. The patent to Boylan et al. discloses a wagering card game wherein each player is dealt a hand of five cards and the dealer is dealt a hand of seven cards. The dealer plays a card from his hand to start a discard deck. Next each player plays a matching card from his respective hand, which either the same suit or same rank, and places it on top of the discard deck.

None of the cited references alone or in combination teach the claimed steps of "dealing six cards, face down from the deck, arranged in a community defining a pyramid having a top row with one wild card, a middle row with two discards and a bottom row with three play cards; comparing matching cards, by rank, from the hand of each player and from said play cards and said wild card, with said discards and placing them on top of matching said discards when said play cards, said discards and said wild cards are turned face up during the course of play; forming, by each player, a best poker hand, wherein the best poker hand consisting of a maximum of five cards chosen from the cards remaining in the hand of the player and from said play cards remaining and from said wild card, if it remains, of said pyramid”.
